GUBERNATORIAL CANVASS

Opening of the Three-cornered Fight at Springfield.

Wright, Wilson and Edwards Discuss the Issues.

Wilson Leads and Has the Crowd at the Start.

Wright Wins Them Over and Drives Wilson to the Wall.

Special dispatch to the Chronicle.

NASHVILLE, TENN., Sept. 1, 1880.

Six hundred people assembled at Springfield, Tenn., to-day to hear the discussion between Gen. John V. Wright, state credit democrat, Hon. S. F. Wilson, low tax, and Col. R. M. Edwards, greenback, candidates for governor, it being the opening of the gubernatorial canvass in the state.

Mr. Wilson led off with the first speech, Gen. Wright came next, and Col. Edwards third. The crowd at first seemed to be in favor of Wilson, but as Gen. Wright progressed in his speech he won friends, and was warmly applauded.

The feature of the day was Gen. Wright's driving Mr. Wilson to the wall and forcing him to admit that he was willing, so far as the state in her sovereign capacity can consent, to allow the question of the legality of the bonds to be tested in the courts, and whatever the result is he (Wilson) will agree to abide by it, and to pay what the courts may decide the state owes.

This statement created a great flutter among the repudiationists, who began to deny Wilson's admission. They surrounded him and compelled him to deny it, but the witnesses to the fact are so abundant that the denial will go for naught. The repudiationists claimed that such an admission would be inevitably fatal to Wilson's prospects, and hence the attempt to try to smother up Wilson's political indiscretion.

MASSACHUSETTS DEMOCRACY.

The committee on permanent organization recommended that P. A. Collins, of Boston, be declared permanent chairman, which was received with enthusiasm. Mr. Collins addressed the convention in a speech of twenty minutes and was vociferously applauded throughout.

A committee was then appointed on resolutions.

Mr. Tarbox, of Lawrence, then offered the following:

Resolved, That the functions of the committee appointed respectively by Mechanics' hall and Faneuil hall conventions of last year now terminate, and the joint committee, hitherto selected from the sub-committees, constitute the democratic committee, to hold office until the first day of July, 1881, with power to fill vacancies if any shall occur.

Mr. Tarbox was called to the platform and said: We are a united democratic party in Massachusetts once more. This is a matter of congratulation to every democrat. We have no quarrel to prosecute against any democrat who stands loyal to the national nominees.

The question was demanded and the resolution adopted by an overwhelming majority.

The committee on credentials reported that there were 1,245 delegates present, representing 329 cities and towns. There were no contesting delegations, and the report was accepted.

At 1:22 p. m. the convention took a recess.

The convention re-assembled this afternoon at 1:30. After the announcement of the names of vice-presidents, Mr. Haggerty of Lowell, put in nomination for governor ex-Governor Wm. Gaston, of Boston. This nomination was strongly opposed by Mr. Allen, of Holyoke, amid great confusion. Upon motion of Mr. Tarbox, of Lawrence, it was resolved to ballot for Governor. Mr. Brady, of Attleboro, offered as an amendment to Mr. Tarbox's motion, that the convention nominate Gen. B. F. Butler, of Lowell, for governor by acclamation. The motion was made amid loud cheers and confusion.

Mr. Allen, of Holyoke, moved to reconsider the motion whereby the convention voted to proceed to ballot. At this point the chairman presented Gen. Butler to the convention. Gen. Butler said:

I rise to speak on the subject of reconsideration, the alternative being the use of my name by acclamation. A fair and free ballot is the pledge of democracy to the country. There is another consideration. When I say a thing I mean it, and when I mean a thing I say it. I have declared that under no consideration would I be subject for an elective office under the incoming administration for reasons which I have deemed sufficient. This is my position before the country. First, I have come out from the republican party. I have stated my reasons for it. If these reasons would have any weight with the republic, they should have been the result of careful thought and not a bid for office. Second, I would talk about my changing ideas, and the result would be injurious to the united party. Let me fight one year in the ranks, or three or four or five years, if necessary. One other reason I will state to you: For a year or two I have sought, by aid of the democratic party, to reform abuses in the state. A portion of the democrats for honest reasons have opposed this use of the democratic party, but I trust they have done so with no considerable bitterness, and have learned that it is impossible to accomplish the work in view without a united democracy, until the party moved by the principles of Jefferson and Hancock presents a solid front to the opposition. There were some feeling in these contests; they have passed away from my mind, and I hope they will pass away from others. I will never do anything which can bring them up again. You have many good men. Select one to go with the name of Hancock. Gentlemen, I thank you for your kindly welcome; and you, Mr. President, for the warm words in which you introduced me. I shall not be your candidate.

After some further discussion, Mr. Burke, of Boston, put in nomination Chas. P. Thompson, of Gloucester. The voting at once began, and Mr. Thompson had a majority of the votes cast on first ballot. His nomination was, thereupon, made unanimous, with much enthusiasm. The ticket was then completed by the nomination of Alpha E. Thompson for lieutenant governor, Michael F. Donahoe for secretary of state, and Francis J. Parker for treasurer.

THAT VIRGINIA DUEL.

RICHMOND, VA., Sept. 1.—The case of Capt. John S. Wise, charged with being about to engage in a duel with Geo. Ben. Johnston, came up in the police court to-day. Captain Wise, who had kept out of the way of arrest since the first of last week, surrendered yesterday, and was present in court to-day. Several witnesses were examined in relation to the apprehended hostile meeting; after which Capt. Wise, after stating that as it was now certain he would be placed under bonds, said he desired to give a full statement of the whole matter, as he thought it was time the public should know about it. He then recited the story of his being blackballed last winter by the Westmoreland club, when he was honored with fifteen black balls for being a friend of Gen. Mahone; that he had on the stump and in a public letter denounced the fifteen as cowards and assassins and had insulted two of them who had come in his way; that recently he had been informed of a conversation in connection with the blackballing which reflected on him, and that a correspondence had been commenced. Capt. Wise then read the whole of the correspondence, which is quite voluminous, and in the course of which he denounced all who had blackballed him as cowards and dastards, who had stabbed him in the back. Dr. Johnston, in a letter to Capt. Wise stated his connection with the affair and demanded a full retraction of the insulting language used by Capt. Wise, to which the latter replied, declining to retract the insult, and reaffirming it with full force and effect. Capt. Wise stated that he had remained out of the city in order to give any of the aggrieved parties an opportunity to communicate with him, as his whereabouts were sufficiently well known for that purpose, but that now he considered the matter as a farce and at an end. The police justice placed him under bond in the same amount, $5,000, as he had Dr. Johnston.

FOUND.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The friends of John M. Benson, of Montgomery, Ala., who mysteriously disappeared recently from his hotel in this city, heard to-day that he had been found in Jamaica, Long Island. At least a person corresponding with the missing man in every particular is reported to have been found there, and there is no doubt of the identity. On obtaining the information, Messrs. Farley, Pearl street merchants, at once dispatched two men to bring Mr. Benson to New York, and provide whatever is necessary. The condition of the man is reported very bad. He was helpless and unable to give any connected account of himself. He told a story about being in search of work, and physically was much prostrated.

STRIKE.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 1.—The laborers in all the cotton presses here are on a strike for an advance in wages. The cotton press proprietors say the strike is the result of an effort on the part of certain agitators to force extreme prices materially in excess of those which have heretofore been paid. It is stated that some of these laborers have been paid as high as fifty dollars per week, though normal wages have been fifty to sixty dollars per month, and the proprietors would willingly pay sixty dollars per month for competent laborers and guarantee steady employment.

The importance of the contest in the state was dwelt upon at length, and he showed that the most important state question is the election of a governor and state legislature. After the appointment of the usual committees, the convention took a recess.

St. John reached Camp Robert with a small escort on Saturday. Gen. Primrose telegraphed that Moosa Khan and other Kabul refugees had reached the camp of Ayoub Khan. The Ghazis are rejoining him and swear to fight the British. Ayoub Khan himself wrote to Col. St. John to-day, desiring him to come to terms. We halt here, preparing to attack Ayoub Khan.

Y.: Dear sir—I am compelled, by my engagements, to deny myself the pleasure of accepting your invitation to the political barbecue of the Nolan association in Albany on the first of September. I regret my inability to be present, as the occasion will, I am sure, be one of great importance and will furnish an illustration of the deep and active interest which the people feel in the cause we have at heart. Thanking you for your letter of the 20th inst., I am am yours truly,

WINFIELD S. HANCOCK.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 31.—To F. M. Doncher, Albany, New York: Dear Sir—It would afford me pleasure to accept your kind invitation to attend the political "barbecue" to be given by the Nolan campaign association on the first of September, but circumstances would hardly admit of my leaving this post of danger at that time, and so I am reluctantly compelled to decline your invitation. We are counting confidently upon the vote of the great empire state for Hancock and English, and will see that the vote of Indiana is cast for the same ticket.

Very respectfully,
WM. H. ENGLISH.

Celebration.

MR. EDITOR: The colored people of Warrensburg and vicinity, Greene county, Tenn., had a joint celebration of the Warrensburg Sunday school and of their freedom, at Concord church, on Saturday, August 28th. The day was clear and beautiful. The exercises were introduced by a fervent prayer by Rev. Samuel Nelson, colored, for the good of the Sunday school, the children, and for the country, and many thanks were offered to the God of the universe for the freedom of the colored people.

Many white people were on the ground, and were invited to participate in the exercises of the day. Milton Hale, white, being present, was called upon, and made a sensible talk to the colored people concerning their freedom, progress, duties and prospects. James Moore, colored, was next introduced. His speech was listened to with marked attention, and greatly eulogized by all who heard it. Then came intermission during which all enjoyed a feast of watermelons and good things prepared for the occasion. After intermission, Major Henry, white, of Greensville, was introduced, who entertained the audience with a speech of some length in his own happy style. His theme pertained to the celebration of the colored people's freedom, and he spoke freely of their duty and privileges as citizens of our great nation. The writer was then introduced, who made a short address in the interest of Sunday schools, after which Samuel Nelson, colored, talked awhile, and then dismissed the audience.

Good order prevailed during the day. The exercises were interspersed with music. The colored people's Sunday school at Warrensburg numbers forty scholars, and is no doubt accomplishing much good.

Gus. A. Henry Dying.

M. W. LaRue, correspondent of the Louisville Courier Journal, in a letter to that paper yesterday, says:

Gus. Henry, the eagle orator of Tennessee, it is rumored, is certainly dying, and, though it may be slowly, yet his life is surely ebbing away, and he will never rise from his present bed of affliction. How pleased an old Tennessee whig pricks up his ears at the mention of his name. What a charm he ever carried with him to win to his cause the people; low easy his master intellect and wonderful eloquence swayed the multitudes of the nation in times gone by. What numberless anecdotes of a pleasing, elevating and appreciative nature his few friends of his early manhood, now tell of him. Dr. Roscoe, an officer in the confederate army, told your scribe one of them. Said he: "When Henry was in the confederate senate, I was asked by some southern and eastern friends to point out the Tennessee delegation. I told them to pick out the most classical statesmanlike head and face, and that was Gus. Henry, the leader and pride of Tennessee, and although every one was a stranger to him, each of them easily identified him by that description alone."

Mat. Brown said: "Gus. Henry won the name of the eagle orator of Tennessee, and very justly, too, for his ability was unsurpassed and his oratory was unapproachable. On one occasion, he was met in debate by a great man of Tennessee, who disgusted him either by argument almost too powerful or actually worthless, and when turned to by his opponent and boasting told that none of his flesh would cling to the eagle orator of Tennessee nor any of his blood discolor his beak, Henry, in his inimitable sarcasm, responded: "The eagle, the proud emblem of American liberty, stoops not to carrion."

But he is now going. A few days more, and the greatest orator Tennessee ever had will pass away and become one of the memories of the things that were.

A Southern Attack on Hampton.

By Telegraph to the N. Y. Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The Richmond Whig, in printing the certificate of democrats that Wade Hampton did say at Staunton what he was first reported to have said, indulges in the following remarks about Hampton:

"That Wade Hampton should have been so silly and indiscreet at Staunton as to talk of funderism and even democracy as the cause of Lee and Jackson was no great matter, but that he should have taken so much pains to deny it, and that, too, with all solemnity, is a matter of grievous magnitude. We gave yesterday the certificate of four well-known Staunton funders that the account of Hampton's speech which appeared in the Valley Virginian was substantially correct, and we here reproduce it as a warning to funders to let 'outsiders' attend to their own affairs, particularly such men as Hampton, who are nothing but name and who preach the payment by others of every fraudulent claim, while they themselves illustrate how the bankrupt law can settle with creditors at 50 cents on the dollar and leave the debtors rich."

Why the South is Solid for Hancock.

From the Staunton Valley Virginian.

"Consider what Lee and Jackson would do were they alive. THESE ARE THE SAME PRINCIPLES FOR WHICH THEY FOUGHT FOR FOUR YEARS. Remember the men who poured forth their life blood on Virginia's soil, and do not abandon them now. Remember that upon your vote depends the success of the democratic ticket."—[Wade Hampton, at the meeting in the interest of democratic harmony in Virginia, at Staunton, July 26, 1880.]

(From four prominent democrats of Staunton, who sat on the platform while Hampton spoke.)

We, the undersigned, heard the speech of Gen. Wade Hampton, delivered in Staunton, on the 26th of July. We have also read the report thereof published in the Valley Virginian on the 29th of July, and hereby certify that that report was substantially correct.

Is it Possible

That a remedy made of such common, simple plants as Hops, Buchu, Mandrake, Dandelion, &c., make so many and such marvelous and wonderful cures as Hop Bitters do? It must be, for when old and young, rich and poor, Pastor and Doctor, Lawyer and Editor, all testify to having been cured by them, we must believe and doubt no longer. See other column.—Post.

PETERSBURG, VA., Sept. 1.—Three children of Charles Wilson, a prominent farmer of Surry county, were fatally poisoned last week by eating the berries of the deadly nightshade. The first and youngest died last Thursday, the second one Sunday night, and the third and only remaining child on Monday. The case is without parallel in this section of country.
